The image shows a template for handwriting practice. It consists of eight identical horizontal rows. Each row is marked by three lines: a solid red line at the top, a dashed pink line in the middle, and a solid red line at the bottom. In the first seven rows, there are seven vertical black dashed lines positioned between the red lines, dividing each row into six equal-width columns. These vertical lines serve as guides for letter height and placement. The eighth row at the bottom is identical in structure but lacks the internal vertical dashed lines, providing a blank starting point for the next line of handwriting.
